state of Pennsylvania in the United States sen its would be peculiarly fitting at this time. Blaine is a Pennsylvanian by birth. He calary of an old revolutionary family of that state. He has always cherished the most devoted attachment for the people and welfare of Pennsylvania. The attachment is reciprocated. At no time was Henry Clay more the ideal of Kentucky than Blaine is to-day the ideal of Pennsylvania. The people of that state pilled up the enormous majority of St. 100 for him in the alse election. They would had has described for the represent them in the Interest stees senate with pay. It would be more suitable that a great state like Pennsylvania it an a little state like Maline, which has not nearly as large a population as the city of Philadiciphia alone.

Blaine may be sent to the senate from Pain sylvania so as to re-enter public life next March. The republican party needs a leader to that body, and his services should not be lost to the country. In Maine it would not be lost to the country. In Maine it would not be onto the to send him to the senate till 1885, and then it would be necessary for him to displace Eugone Halle, which he would probabily refuse to do. But Don 1 ameron, whose term expires on the 4th of March next, has already signified his desire and purposa to reture. The great republican state of Primsylvania cannot honor itself more than by availing Blaine back to his native state and restoring his cenium it services it, the country. Blaine will have sufficient time between now and next Mucch to compiles his look, and a party and personal pressure should be brought to hear upon him which shall in 100.

A suit the week Collon Parker and George Dacres of Walla Walla is the legal event of the season in that quarter. The property involved consists of a farm adjoining and a portion of Shield's addition to that city: the suit involves over $22,000 worth of property, damages and reals. It appears that the property was sold under an order from the court to satisfy certain judgments, but in mixing the sale the sheriff, through a deputy, acted in the place of the proper authority, as provided for mader the old equity statutes of the territory, which separated equity from civil suits and provided that in cases of equity the same rules should prevail as govern similar suits in the supreme courts of the linted States. This hav required the district judge to a point a master in chancers in each soil, whose luty it should have been to sail the property in question but for some reason or other the judge disregarded the law and allowed the property to be sold by the sheriff.

The original ries of a fast foright in a was ctorpo ation fechnicality, if not achirames over whose tracks its cars ran . The fact roight line owned its own cars, and kert close roots that were improvidently short of cars through follong, and goods were not subject t through billing, and goods werd not sulject to delay at junct on points. A proper tracing form was devised and used to show how it of eight was traveling and to locate responsibility as letween the different companies over whose roads the cast of the fast frought ine ran. So far as the stipper was concerned be give his business to the fast frought one in couracted speedy transit of his freight. It cas him no nor than if he simply delivered it all the receiving depot of the initial ine and trusted to hock in all his ter relating to the hindling of his freight after the initial line and trusted to hock in all his ter relating to the hindling of his freight after the initial line and trusted to hock in all his ter relating to the hindling of his freight after the initial line. In course of time, however, a usage was generally established amone thanks of shifting hindle his classific off, or freight hable to damage or depreciation by decay, as line freight freight system.

But, as regards the railroad corporation over whise rate the line cars ran, things were a attendifferent. The crowing beauty of the new Hern of trusportation was represented by a fast-freight corporation whose proprietors. and managers were more or loss managers, if not proprietors, of the roads that constituted the roate of the limit. Inder this regime it was possible to a fast freight line to make nones, while the real over which its care rin was protected learning itself it count in at ventacions sucker that could not exist with a tile ratio and in many as support. Fo state the point very plottly, if was not then consider a improper that is, B and a long of ters in stockholders of the Party Flatinitarial which it connects in with the samply bear rink to more in which the samply bear rink to more in which shall meet the early frequency that is the interest over these according to the left of the plates frequently and set a health of the flags has frequently in the interest over these according to a constant of the transport of the plates of the transport of the plates of the transport of the plates of TWO SOURCES OF EXPRISE.

The expense of fast freight lines were of two nds. Lines which were represented by corporations entirely separate from the railroads and owned their own cars, exacted a commis-sion on all business delivered to the railroad son on all business delivered to the railroad in their curs, and paid all expenses of managers' and soliciting agents' salaries and office rent and dividends out of this commission. The Morchants Despatch and Empire Lines, the only red a ning proprietary lines, continue to conduct business in this way to this day. The freight is billed at the regular through rate and the commission deducted as an arbitrary, the reads in the line prorating the remainder. regist is billed at the regular through rate and the commission deducted as an arbitrary, the rands in the ton educate as an arbitrary, the rands in the billed provided as an arbitrary, the rands in the billed provided as an arbitrary, the rands in the provided as fast freight line. Each road furnished its proper quota of cars, which were distinctively painted and lettered. Receipts and experience were prorted according to mile agg or homology, as the case might be. The mulitors of the market freight line, settled accounts once a minch fast freight line work to great the same road. To each of them the railroad company contributed its share of expenses for office root and soliciting agents salaries, finasmuch as every railroad company has lie on freight contracting agent at each terminas it often happened that the regular agent and the fast freight line agent would be working for the same lot of freight—a clear surplinance of the services of one able-bodied railroad man when two or three line agents were each working for freight which in any event must go over a certain initial road the situation in point of want of economy became still more aggravited conductions are smoot the order of the railroading traffic in traffic minches agents. The newer idea of railroading was to abolish THE NEW PRIDIAL

The newer idea of railroading was to abolish commussions wherever practicable. Freight privaces were no linger farmed out, and salprivaces were no linger farmed out, and salaries were substituted for commissions. There secret service and depredations of this kind are comparable by few in d far between A to the linding, the advantages of a first freight line are not what they once ware. Any read to dar well issue its through his of lading sometimes as a upper will prefer a lime ball to a regular radinade issue because of some funcied superior responsibility for delay or loss or donage, but the occasions justfoug this belief are relatively race. In the matter of keeping track of the freight in transit mor ratio also for facilities equal to those of the fast lines. I me freight is reported by tracer forwarded to mail. If cars are traced by wire the radicod company does it and railroad chirks might do. The line agent sole its freight that the railroad's contracting agent could just as well get. The line agent can not guarantee innu unity from overcharges or promise unusual expedition in settlement of claims for loss or damage. There is no better fast-freight line than the Star i mon, yet mans of its patrous in $1 tools take out their through bills of lading at Mr Hibbard's office quite has often as at Mr Freelorn's Moreover, there are restrictions placed on the use of line cars which largely increases the indeage account. A rivid with a large in mber of cars devoted to the service of several fast lines is to a certain evelent deprived of the use of the cars where they might at times be used for other business. The line cars have to be hauled to the places offering his freight, and it, one way and another the mileage account rous up like a plumber's bill. For these reasons, railroad after railroad has abandoned the fast freight line system. It has had its day and economy demands its substitution by other methods. The Wahash has recently lopped off all the fast freight lines operating over its tracks, and has reduced as contributions for lea aries of solicting agents, office expenses and mileage very considerable while shippers thus for have not been heard to complain. There' is plent of fast freigh west of the Mississippi, but pracheally no fast bines, and yet the western shipper is about as wet pleased as the westhound shapper from New York. It is not one that the fast freight must go—a great winds in the mileations are that before a great whole.

THE SUBSTITUTE

The indications are that before a great while the days of all fast freight lines will be num-lered. In their stead will come a systematic and simple play of through biling over all the roads, while each road will hustle high class freights along is tracks as fast as it can (on-solidations has a made our railroad systems longer and 'ewer in number and through bill-ing means more than it used to Perha is trans-fer companies and mater achieve mule or much

The quoted participal from the Constitution has a number of sentences that need explanation and require better corroboration than Mr. Nast's pencil and kinfe, "The negro will find that his best friend is the southern democrat" When did this "econstructed sentiment come into play? When was this virtue born, and how did the shorgin and the tissue ballof hear such hob fruit. "President Cleveland is his friend," In with has it appeared that this friendship can be so positively proclaimed? "Every right that hey have as freemen and citizens will be jealously protected by the white men of the south," With jealousy truly? "In their schools, at the ballot-boxes, everywhere they have their full rights." Then what became of the negro bote in the last election? Where are the to usands of ballots the, had a right to cast, and which, if cast by virtue of that right, would have shivered the solid pouth in twam? Where are these negro schools in the south that are so beautifully protected, when even as far north as Nashville, in a community where Northern sentiment has temperec southern aspertly, the Fisk university was regarded as neuros to the sou and a poison to society? By what right sloes Georgia, that gloats and revuls in its strength to turn its hazy brawn to violence, teach the posped of intolerance in the face of Virginia frand, Louisiana rapine, and Missianpissanghter?

Mr Cleve and is right, "Shake heartly, boys," is the admontition of the hour, but it is not bands will shake, but hearts. The negro of the south has good reason to be afraid. If a has ample cause to tremble. Experience has taught him to quake before the outletted hand of the southern white main, and no voice thou the and allay his apprehension. He is convinced that if we continue to burn our dead at all we ought to adopt an entirely new plan. Starting from the principle of the rotation of crops, Mr Blyth suggests that every nece of agricultural laind in the country should take its furn in being used as a cemetery. As soon as any plot was, filted five years should be allowed to clapse, and then it is ould be restored to cultivation. "Beneath the waving corn or the stately places the reminus of the dead would be free from desceration," and purhaps on lie principle of the Persam poet, who thought that "over blows so risi the rose as where some buried Casar lies," the dead would "live again," in plants or trees or corn, "made better by their presence." Mr Blyth calculates that the agricultural lands in these is clauds would give room for 19,346,000,300 interments, and that at the rate of 600,000 deaths a year, it would take 50,000 years before any of the old graves need be again utilized. If this be really the only safe in ide of burnal the chances of cremation ought to improve.
